LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFTBy S. W. STRAUS
President American Society for Thrift

This is the period when we give much attention to thoughts of patriotism—when we recount the glories of our national history and contemplate the wonderful future that lies ahead of this favored land.

This is our first Fourth of July since the outbreak of the European War and let us take unto ourselves one great lesson that is appropriate in this season of national celebration.

And the lesson is this:

To be patriotic one should be thrifty. To be wasteful today is to be disloyal to the best interests of our beloved nation. We are rapidly approaching a period in America when we shall have now entering that era, War, with its prodigious waste, is bringing home to us as never before the need of taking care of our every asset and resource. National thrift is built upon individual thrift. The nation, as such, can only be thrifty to the extent that you and I are thrifty.

So, on this day of thankfulness for the heritage of liberty that our forefathers have given us, let us remember that posterity will hold us accountable for the deeds we do. We must arise to the crisis as nobly as did the Colonists of Old. Ours are different problems from theirs and they must be met in a different way.

The Franklins and Washingtons said the foundation for future liberty and enlightenment. We in this crucial epoch must safeguard that inheritance. We, too, must lay a foundation for the future America, and that foundation must be the thrift of the people.

Here is an example of individual thrift that came to light in the recent car strike in Chicago:

Henry Toberg, a conductor on the Blue Island Ave. line, is said to be the richest street car employee in the world. The strike gave him his first vacation since the famous tie-up of the Chicago street car lines in 1887.

Toberg's wealth is estimated by fellow workmen to be in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars. Early in his career after he had saved by dint of economy, sobriety and wise conservation of his funds, he bought stock in the street railway company. This was more than twenty years ago and now the dividends from this stock are said to be many times the amount of his annual wages. He owns other valuable stocks and bonds, has purchased a hotel and other buildings along the line of the Blue Island Ave. car and his rent roll is said to be upward of $2,000 a year.

Now, if a man in such a position can, in the beginning, save such an amount and eventually pile up a fortune by judicious investments and wise living, surely it ought not to be so difficult a thing for the workmen in stores and offices whose weekly pay envelope is of fair size, to put away a part at least of it.

Early lessons of thrift helped Toberg toward success. He did not live above his means. His position, with its assured salary, proved ample for his simple wants, and out of it he was able to save a goodly sum regularly.

FEMALE LABOR THERE TO STAYAnd the British National Union of Railwaymen Are Uneasy Over the Problem.

LONDON, July 7.—The British ministry has promised the National Union of Railwaymen that at the end of hostilities the railway men serving with the armed forces will obtain jobs equal to those they gave up. At the same time, J. H. Thomas, M. P., secretary of the union, says he is extremely uneasy over the problem of women railway workers. In a speech at a meeting of the men in Nottingham, he said:

"I am profoundly convinced that you have to face the fact that female labor has come to stay. Therefore we have got to make up our minds upon one or two things. First, what grades would it be dangerous for female labor to be engaged in; second, whatever grades they work in, they must not be used as a means of reducing the prices that we have secured for particular grades by years of agitation. What he has to say is that no woman's labor is to be made the means of reducing the status of any grades in the railway service."

According to the speaker, there are certain classes of railway work which women are unable to perform, and women are not proving satisfactory in all the positions that have been opened for them.

Two Courses Open.

In short there were two courses open to the union—either to refuse to allow the experiment of women workers altogether as has been done in some places by the street car men, or to devote the union's energies to insisting upon the maintenance of the standard of wages. Most of the speakers favored the latter procedure, urging that "while the trade unionist cannot, without justifying his own principles, protest against female labor, he has every right to protest against female labor, which is merely cheap labor under an alias, and it is in the interest of the country that he should so protest."

The only government department which has made any wholesale effort to avail itself of the large amount of female labor at its disposal to take the place of men in military service is the post office. This department now has 3,000 new women employees in the various branches of its work throughout the country.

Of the 170,000 men employed by the post office department before the war, 37,000 have joined the army. In the rural districts, women have been employed in a limited way as letter carriers for some years past; they have now been introduced into some of the small towns and cities. Other places which are being opened to women are those of the mail sorters and messengers. Girl telegraph messengers, mounted on bicycles, gradually taking the places of the boy messengers, and a great deal of the post office's telegraph work is being done by young women. Women clerks and accountants have been introduced for the first time into the London general post office.

Work Well Done.

On the authority of high postal officials, it is stated that the reports from all quarters are to the effect that the work of the women who have been engaged to replace men has been extremely well done. "They work quickly and accurately, and they are very conscientious," says one report.

Women letter carriers will be seen in the suburban districts of London within a few weeks. Candidates for these posts have already been called for from the government labor exchanges.

Women are as common a sight in English fields now as in the continental countries. Over 150,000 male farm laborers have enlisted in the army and caused a grave shortage. Farmers complain of the scarcity of labor and say that they have suffered from recruiting all they can bear. As the local force supply was never so important as now, they have been asked for the release of soldiers for farm work. This request has been granted by the war office for the harvesting of the grain crops, but for that only.

LET OUTOf the Internal Revenue Service in Order to Reduce Expenses.

The recent ruling of the treasury department for the reduction of expenses has necessitated the letting out of three deputies in the international revenue department as follows: R. S. Botten, of Wayne county; Ben Webb, of Charleston, and John Tierney, of Clarksburg, and the accounts of these deputies are being made up and the books will be sent to the office here and the business transacted from this office. All these men were capable officials, but the changes were made for the reason stated, the reduction of the expenses of the administration.

TURKISH NEWSIs in the Greatest Vogue in Germany at the Present Time.

HAMBURG, July 7.—Turkish news is in the greatest vogue in Germany at the present time. German papers have just printed, as an evidence of the growth of occidental ideas in Turkey, a story of the increasing freedom of women telephone operators in Constantinople.

Though there was the utmost opposition at the start to the idea of Turkish women violating their century old traditions by entering the exchanges and "exposing" themselves to the public, this feeling has almost entirely died away. To facilitate their work the authorities have allowed them to abandon the prescribed Turkish head dress and wear a cap that does not interfere with the telephone head piece.

Women have become so proficient—so indispensable in fact—that a woman, Miss Osman, has been placed in entire charge of the Samsoul exchange. When the telephone operators attempted recently to conduct an out doors picnic along occidental lines however, all the old time prejudice arose and a policeman spoiled the whole affair by forcing the women to sit down with their backs to the men.

SMALL CHILD ILL.

Martha Elizabeth, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Quinn, of Point Comfort, is quite ill at her home there. Her condition has been serious for several years.

ONE way to reduce the cost of living is to watch the spoonfuls—to learn the many simple ways of kitchen economy.

You have heard a good deal about the discovery of the scientific Crisco Process. Perhaps you have not realized that one of Crisco's most important advantages is economy. Besides being a pure vegetable cooking fat, which produces digestible and delicious foods, Crisco also is a money saver. For the following reasons it is economy to use

CRISCO
For Frying For Shortening
For Cake MakingEconomy in Frying

Can be used over and over for frying all manner of foods—fish, onions, potatoes. It is not necessary to keep different kettles of fat for different fryings.

In deep frying, Crisco can be heated hotter than lard without smoking. By having Crisco hot enough and by adding a small amount of raw food at a time, there practically will be no absorption. Notice how small an amount has been used.

Economy in Shortening

Crisco is the richest of cooking fats. Less, therefore, need be used. Crisco also is cheaper per net pound than the best quality of pail lard.

Economy in Cake Making

Crisco cakes are as delicate and rich as butter cakes. Crisco costs less than half as much as butter and less Crisco need be used, because butter is one-fifth water, salt and curd, while Crisco is 100% fat.
